"1935 MUST SEE POVERTY CONQUERED"

Define Signs Monetary Reform Making Progress

—Much To Do—
VANCOUVER, B. C. Jan. 3.—Co-operative action by all branches of the government in maintaining the production and distribution of abundant wealth in the service of mankind was the prayer of Mayor Keith G. MeGeer, in his New Year's message to the people of Vancouver.

Mr. MeGeer closed his message with the words: "I hope that in 1935 we will have no more poverty."

"In times such as the present when the world is being reduced to conditions of poverty and distress, it is our duty to destroy the forces which are causing poverty and distress."

Mr. MeGeer said that the government of Canada is doing its best to do this, but that the people must also do their part.

"We must have a monetary system which will give us the power to do this," he said.

"We must have a monetary system which will give us the power to do this," he said.

At the head of the long parade of persons who will contribute their bits toward solution of the Lindbergh kidnapping and murder puzzle will be those pictured above. . . . Colonel H. Norman Schwartzkopf, commander of the New Jersey State Police, leader of the hunt for the kidnappers; J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Bureau of Investigation for the Department of Justice; Dr. John F. Condon, the famous 'Jafse' of ransom negotiations, who threw the $50,000 ransom money over a cemetery wall; Betty Gow, the Lindbergh nurse who identified garments submitted by ransom claimants as evidence they held the baby; Joseph Perrone, taxi driver who unwittingly delivered a note from the kidnapper to Dr. Condon; Arthur Koehler, Department of Agriculture expert who traced the wood used in building the kidnapper's ladder; Albert Osborn, Jr., one of the prominent experts who have made comparisons between the handwriting of Bruno Hauptmann and that on the ransom notes; David T. Wilentz, Attorney General of New Jersey, heads the prosecution staff in the sensational case.

HAUPTMANN JURY PANEL FILLED TODAY

Col. Lindbergh Closely Watches Preliminaries in Kidnap-Murder Trial

FLEMINGTON, N.J., Jan. 3.—A swift-moving drama, the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, four German carpenter charged with kidnapping and murdering the first Lindbergh baby, was rushed through opening steps Wednesday. Last night six men and four women had been selected as jurors to try Hauptmann for his life. Only two more were needed.

Court was adjourned for the day, with the prospect the jury would be completed first thing this morning.

IS EXAMINED

A special panel of 48 persons was exhausted. State and defense attorneys, intent on losing no time, were questioning other members of the full venire of 150.

Keenly mindful of proceedings, the slain baby's father, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, sat in the crowded little Hunterdon county courtroom, a few paces from the accused killer.

EYES NEVER MEET

Their eyes never met. Hauptmann, sullen, pale and stoical, stared blankly at the floor or straight ahead at the yellowed oaken bench where supreme court Justice W. Trenchard presided.

To the left of the defendant, facing him, sat Hauptmann's wife, Anna, pale and tense.

Col. Lindbergh kept pretty much to himself. He sat with legs crossed. Sometimes he cupped his chin in his hand and watched, studying the talisman. Mrs. Lindbergh was not in the courtroom.

NEVER HEARD OF FAMOUS KIDNAP CASE

Refutes Kidnap Ransom Notes

FLEMINGTON, N.J., Jan. 3.—The man who never heard of the famous Lindbergh kidnapping case, the man who never heard of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, came to town today arrayed in his Sunday best and told the court and the world about it.

Bushy-haired, perfectly natural and completely at ease, Frank Borvies, a farmer of Readington, took his solemn oath as one of the jury panel drawn for the Hauptmann murder trial, then calmly answered questions.

He never had heard of the Lindbergh case, never had heard of a man named Hauptmann.

The packed, intricate courtroom tittered. Legal eyebrows arched. Even Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, sullen, broad, and Hauptmann—the impassive, emotionless—broke into a broad grin. The farmer grinned delightedly when exhumed from service.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 3.—The Globe-Democrat says John M. Treadwell, East St. Louis, Ill., handwriting expert, will testify that leader Fisher, dead almost a year, and not Bruno Richard Hauptmann, was author of the Lindbergh ransom notes.

Fisher died in Germany of tuberculosis last April. Hauptmann, charged with the kidnap-murder of the Lindbergh baby, has asserted he received the ransom money from Fisher.

HOLIDAY PAST, BLANKET NEED GOES RIGHT ON

Christmas is but a memory. The New Year has arrived and with it has come a feeling of hope for better times. Those who have not suffered the miseries of unemployment and poverty are looking forward to a brighter year than that which has passed.

But for many there is very little hope that the coming year will prove better than the one which has just passed.

Out of work, with no money and often many mouths to feed, the prospects for the coming year are anything but happy for many of Edmonton's citizens.

Those who can look forward to the coming year will find it of reasonable security may play their part in assisting those to whom the thought of the future can bring nothing but dread, by giving a donation to the Land-Colonel William Barker chapter I. O. D. E. blanket fund. Even a small subscription will help and all proceeds will go towards buying blankets for those who need them.

Donations may be paid to any of the following central depositories: Sunnyside Market, 2660 111 avenue; Allman's Confectionery, 1024 124 street; Cow's drug store, 10349 Whyte avenue; University Truck Store, Johnson's Cafe, Jasper avenue and 101 street; and King Edward Cafe, 301 street.

Reminiscences of five years with the British army of occupation in Turkey, was the subject of an address given by Capt. W. A. Eadie, late of the King's Own Royal Regiment and now with the Salvation Army in this city, to fellow-members of the Red Chevron Club at the regular monthly meeting Wednesday night.

Captain Eadie, who served as embarkation officer and in various other staff capacities during the occupation of Constantinople and other areas in the Black Sea and on the Gallipoli peninsula, told a fascinating story of activities during a hectic five years. He described the everyday life of the troops, of sporting activities, and of revolutionary and other important incidents not generally known.

Dr. R. C. Lyle, late of the Grenadier Guards, moved a hearty vote of thanks to the speaker, observing that the Red Chevron Club's fortunate in its membership, since at each monthly meeting a member gives a talk of equal interest to his own experiences. Lt. Col. E. Brown, M.M., seconded. Music and business occupied the balance of the meeting.

Clock Stopped: Court Sat Late

FLEMINGTON, N.J., Jan. 3.—Court proceedings at the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann ran overtime yesterday, not because Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard or attorneys planned it, but because the courtroom clock stopped.

The adjournment was to have been called at four a.m. The hour, however, and it was 4:37 before anyone noticed the clock had stopped.

NEW LOAD DISTRIBUTION

Front spring, engine and cab have been moved forward on the chassis, thus moving the load centre forward, and reducing body overhang. the social round

Actually, we never put much faith in the existence of the late Jean Bluff, during those years she resided in Edmonton prior to her recent death. The reason for this was the fact that she was a very young woman, and her death was a great loss to the city.

When the subject turned to the beautiful poetry of Mrs. Bluff, and to her school teaching, and to her social life, the conversation was a very interesting one, and the guests were very much interested.

At that time, Harpers was sold only by subscription, and as the aspiring young poet did not receive it, she was left in ignorance of the contents of the magazine. Then, one day when she accompanied members of the family to town, she noticed a copy of the magazine in a book store, and she bought it.

Her Arms and Legs Immovable

Ten Years with Rheumatism

To this woman it must have been the consequence to live a new life, when she began to use her arms and legs again, after they had been helpless for ten years.

"I suffered with rheumatism," she writes, "and had been bed-ridden since 1920. I could not move arms or legs, and had to be fed like a child. Every body thought I should be an invalid all my life. I forced myself to fight against it and tried a number of different things. It was Kneuschen that eventually saved me, and to-day I consider it as saving my life. My condition has greatly improved, and my limbs are gradually becoming more supple. Already I can sit without assistance, and dress myself—I had not done for ten years—M. B.

Ten Good Rules For Happiness

Here are ten rules for happiness. Try 'em. First. Make up your mind to be happy. Happiness is mostly a matter of self-hypnotism. You can think yourself happy or you can think yourself miserable. It is up to you which you do. Grab all of the innocent amusements that come your way.

Second. Make the best of your lot. Of course, you haven't everything you want and things are not just right. Nobody is that lucky. Even the most fortunate have a lot of cramped toes, leaves under their mattresses of ease. There isn't a single human being who hasn't plenty to cry over and a lot to rejoice over, and the trick is to make the laughs outweigh the tears.

Third. Don't take yourself too seriously. Don't think that everything that happens to you is of world-shaking importance and that somehow you have been protected against the misfortunes that befall other people.

Fourth. Don't take other people too seriously. They are not much of a machine, either. Don't let their criticisms worry you. You can't please everybody, so please yourself. Don't let your neighbors set your standards for you.

Fifth. Don't borrow trouble. You have to pay compound interest on that, and it will bankrupt you in the end if you do. It is a queer thing, but imaginary troubles are harder to bear than actual ones.

Sixth. Don't cherish enemies and grudges. Don't keep up old quarrels. Don't remember all the mean things people have done to you. Forget them. Hate is a deadly chemical that does its work in our own hearts that poisons our own souls. It takes all the joy out of life and hurts far worse than it does any one else.

Seventh. Keep in circulation. Go around and meet people. Before to clubs. Travel as much as you can. Have as many interests as possible. Have hosts of friends.

Eighth. Don't hold post-mortems. Don't spend your life wondering over the mistakes you have made or the sorrows that have come your way.

A BEDTIME STORY

Story by HAL COCHRAN Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

"The weasel and the muskrat stood and shouted, 'Say, the muskrat's good. We had a bunch that he would take a flip upon the ice and don't know it. I know it's a lot of work. I've stored it up for days.'"

"See him go! The way he does the funny curves is really very nice." "Ah, ducks," said Duncy. "Here of quite a bit of firewood. There's a good. We had a bunch that he would take a flip upon the ice and don't know it. I know it's a lot of work. I've stored it up for days."

"The muskrat did, and by and by a blam was rising in the bay. The two then discovered Duncy was nowhere around."

"The bunch soon heard the weasel roar. 'He's on the ice, just off the shore.' The Times watched a moment. Then they heard leave Duncy shout."

"Poor Duncy's cracked the ice," said he. "He's just as wet as he can be. Come on, some of you. Throchles, here! We pull him out."

"Duncy is rescued in a surprising way in the next story."

How started running through the snow and Golly shouted. "There you go! I know you couldn't keep your feet. You're clumsy as a cat."

"Poor Duncy! He had slipped a bit, and in the snow they saw him slip. The flop was unexpected, and it was a sight to see."

"Then Duncy said, 'I'm getting cold. I wish that we could get hold of some firewood.'"

Seen As Means Of Securing Larger Education Grants

Provincial Start for Teachers' Pension Scheme is Urged—Will Co-operate on Interest Cuts.

Legislation to reduce the poll tax, an increase in the provincial grant for education and a reduction of at least 25 per cent. in bond interest rates will be pressed for by the Edmonton Public School board if decisions of the trustees, who met in committee of the whole, Wednesday night, are ratified by the board proper.

The provincial government will be asked to take action to set up a contributory pension scheme for teachers. The city council has advised that the board is prepared to co-operate to secure reduction of interest and payments to sinking funds and joint discussion of the plan is urged.

SALARY ISSUE SHELVED

The meeting held in committee, with Trustee P. C. Cassman in the chair, left in abeyance the question of readjustment of teacher salaries, proposed for a budget reduction.

These recommendations and questions of discussion all arose in discussion of the "major" statement of Dr. Walter Morrison, board chairman, which was read by him early in December. A progress report on the 1935 budget was made by Trustee A. A. C. Cassman, chairman of the finance committee. He stated that the city is in a position to make the plan that the necessary reduction of interest and payments to sinking funds will be made by the school tax, Mr. Ottewill stated that there was no action taken in the school act, where the board could not find a way to cut the school tax, where the board made a levy. The board passed a resolution to postpone the issue until next year.

BESTORE REDUCTION

Trustee Dr. F. W. Crang moved that the province be asked to reduce the educational grant, at least to the extent of restoring the 10 per cent. reduction made in 1934.

"When we ask the province for more money, they merely devise ways to get more from the city," Trustee Ottewill said.

Dr. J. D. Morrison added, "But they get it from a different class of people and the burden is spread. City taxes are principally borne by the home owner."

In a move to reduce bond interest by 25 per cent, approximately $200,000 in savings have been secured in the last four years. Mr. Cassman stated that the city could be saved, present interest charges being $181,000.

Dr. Morrison suggested that this would be slightly offset by the increase in the educational grant, the sinking fund, which holds some $100,000, would be increased while other corporations might also cut charges.

HUGE BETTING ANGLE

"I would like to know just how far I would be prepared to go," Trustee Cassman said.

"There is always the cry of the public credit, and we must borrow money, so why should we cut interest the same way we cut the interest on a bond?" Trustee Cassman asked.

"I am not at all in a position with regard to interest," Trustee A. A. C. Cassman said. "If we do it, we do it by default."

"Then what do they do? They have to do it," Trustee Cassman said.

TAX BONDS HEAVILY

A short financial review by Harry G. Turner, city secretary-treasurer, supplied information that of the some $132,000 in sinking fund, only $10,000 is in the sinking fund, the others being in the annual sinking fund principal is $60,000, sinking fund $20,000 and interest $181,000.

"We could seek authority at this time to have the bonds heavily taxed that it would pay the interest to take new bonds for the present unexpired issues, at a lower rate," Mr. Cassman continued.

Mr. Ottewill pressed his motion for a 25 per cent cut to be urged on the holders. It was carried unanimously.

Mr. Barnes moved that the city council be asked to confer with the province regarding reduction of interest and sinking fund payments. He felt that the sinking fund interest was being paid because it is the board's control.
